STATE SCHOOL SYSTEM CAUSE SLOW PROGRESS

Efficiency Commission Says Future Development of State Resources Depend on Education Facilities

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN RECENT YEARS SEEN

By Association Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 21.—Kentucky's industrial development has lagged because of the lack of proper educational facilities and expenditures according to a report on the state's educational system which will be made to Gov. Fields Monday by the Efficiency Commission. The report, made public today, declares that "upon the development of the educational system depends the further development of the personal and material welfare and resources of the state."

Great progress has been made in recent years, according to the commission, but much more must be done if Kentucky is to keep pace with her sister states. Chief among the changes advocated for the improvement of the educational system are those "which look in the direction of a complete tying together of all the parts of the system as will make for a consistent state educational policy, and eliminate the lamentable waste of resources which is inevitable under the present system of divided control.

Specifically, it is recommended that a single State Board of Education shall "have direction over the certification and, training of teachers and the control of text books, and would exercise a greater degree of supervision over the districting of the state for school purposes."

Consolidate Boards

This would involve a consolidation of the boards of trustees, the various normal schools, the Text Book Commission, the Board of Vocational Education and the State Board of Examiners.

The report continues:

"Upon the development of the educational system in Kentucky depends as much as upon any other single factor the further development of the personal and material welfare and resources of the State. It is no more coincidence that Kentucky ranks low among the states, on the one hand, in per capita income and wealth, and, on the other hand, forty-fifth among the states in the percentage of school population attending school, forty-first in expenditure per teacher for salaries, fortieth in average annual expenditure per child of school age, and correspondingly low in other items which are commonly used to measure the efficiency of a public school system. There is undoubtedly a direct relationship between Kentucky's general economics status and her educational backwardness. For the lack of proper educational facilities and expenditures industrial development has lagged, for the reason that a sufficient number of persons have not been properly trained to convert the state's potential welfare into actual wealth.

Some fundamental changes in the organization of the educational system were urgently recommended, chief of which pointed toward a complete tying together of all of the parts of the system as will make for "a consistent state educational policy, and eliminate the the lamentable system of divided control."

State Board of Education

The most obvious need, the report declared, is to create a state board of education, to be non-political and of continuous life, which would have direction over the certification and training of the teachers and the control of the text books, and would "exercise a greater degree of supervision over the districting of the state for school purposes."

Probably the greatest waste in the public school system is in the establishment of small districts, probably in some measure to satisfy local pride and ambition, the report adds.

During the past three years very great advances have been made in the state's educational system, particularly under the legislation enacted in 1920," it is stated. "The chief advance under this legislation has been the taking of the county superintendents out of the list of elective officers, and making them appointive by and subject to the direction of the county boards of education. It is un-

THERMOMETER DROPS TO 4 ABOVE, PROVING WINTER STILL HERE

Just to remind the people that winter was not yet over, the thermometer took another relapse yesterday with the result that the plumbers and garage men are having a record run again today. The same relapse, too, was responsible for the sparse assemblies in the church pews last night, it is presumed.

The thermometer stood at four above early this morning, not quite as low as two weeks ago when the other cold spell was felt. A stiff wind this morning emphasized the cold, however, and the sun, shining all morning, was unable to start a thaw.

M. H. S. UNBEATEN AT BASKETBALL

Local Boys Retain Record, Defeating Maryville 30 to 20 Saturday Night

M. H. S. quintette defeated the Maryville basketball players Saturday night with a score of 30 to 20 in one of the most interesting games ever played in Middlesboro.

In view of the fact that the Maryville team was beaten by only three points by the Knoxville high school team this season and that they rank among the best players of this class in Tennessee, the victory is a signal one for the local boys.

The playing was fast and furious throughout. The Maryville lads put up a strong fight but their inability to shoot fouls lost them the game.

A large crowd was present the seating capacity being taxed. On account of the seats which have been recently made, all were able to enjoy the game in comfort. T. R. Hill was referee.

The local boys piled up their winning score as follows: Brown, Jacobs and Gibson, forwards, 10, 11, and 2, respectively; Marlon, center, 2, Faulconer, guard, 2. Stone was also guard.

The Maryville boys scored as follows: Davis and Delaney, forwards, 2 and 6, respectively; J. Wallace, Delozier and R. Wallace, 3, 5 and 1, respectively.

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 21.—George Colvin, superintendent, announced today a fireboy undoubtedly set fire to the cottage of the Louisville and Jefferson county Children's Home. The cottage was destroyed with a loss of approximately $30,000. The 31 boys were rescued, two being slightly hurt.

REBELS 'POSTPONE' TAMPICO BLOCKADE

Rear Admiral Sends Washington Word Withdrawal of Revolutionists From Port

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The rebel blockade of Port Tampico has been "postponed" until the end of January, Rear Admiral Magruder reported to the Navy Department today on arrival off Tampico aboard the flagship cruiser Richmond. Message served to relieve the tension here in connection with the Tampico situation. Richmond will remain off Tampico for th present. Officials hope the blockade problem will not be revised and that the warning to Mexican rebels emphasized by the presence of the war vessels at Tampico has been sufficient.

SAYS PEACE PLAN COST OWN AFFAIR

Bok Tells Senate Committee He Paid All Expenses—Refuses Information

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The senate committee today exchanged views with Edward Bok, donor of the $100,000 prize contest which was won by a plan proposing American co-operation with the League of Nations. The witness declared he personally paid all expense of the contest, but regarded the total amount expended this own affair.

INTEREST IN BOK PEACE PLAN HIGH

Citizens Can Vote Till February 7—Thousands Take Interest In Matter

Interest in the winning plan of the Bok Peace Award is increasing rapidly and the voting is continuing on a scale of unexpected magnitude.

United States citizens have a chance to vote, no matter where they may be. Requests for ballots have come from Alaska, Bermuda, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and other places outside the boundaries, yet belonging to the United States.

Such large corporation as the Ford Motor Company, New York Central railway, chambers of commerce of large cities, labor unions, women's fraternal, religious, educational and farmers' organizations are taking polls and sending them in to headquarters.

Contrary to prevailing opinion, the plans and ballots are sent out, not by the Award office, but by cooperating organizations. These organizations usually present the plan to their members for their vote with a letter.

STATE P. T. A. PLAN MEETING

To Convene Last Week in January at University of Kentucky, at Lexington

Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 21.—Cooperating with the College of Agriculture leaders of the Kentucky Parent-Teachers' Association are inviting every parent teachers organization in the state to have representatives at the rural School Day Conference of the Farm and Home Convention at the Kentucky College of Agriculture January 29 to February 1. Speakers of national and international renown will address the conference, which will come to order, under the chairmanship of Mrs. M. L. Hall, superintendent of Shelby County schools. The committee in charge is convinced that this is the best rural school program ever held in Kentucky.

The chief speaker on the program will be Dr. C. J. Galpin, economist in charge of rural life studies of the U. S. Department of Agriculture whose book, 'Rural Life', and whose publications on the rural, social, and economic problems of the United States have won for him international comment and renown. His services are in such demand throughout the nation that great credit is due the committee for bringing him her to address the meeting on one of the most important phases of his life. "Some Factors Which Affect the Standard of Living." The discussion following his address will be led by Mrs. Frank L. McVey, former Dean of women of the University of Kentucky.

Other addresses and speakers of the day will be "Is the Rural School doing its Duty to the Farm Home" by Miss Mary E. Sweeney, head of the Home Economics Department of the State University. "Present Day Tendencies in Rural Education" by W. S. Taylor, Dean of education; and "Kentucky Schools", by McHenry Rhoads, State Superintendent of Schools. It is the belief of those who arrangned the program that this meeting will mark the beginning of a new epoch in Kentucky country living.

Many Recommended "Pay As You Go" Plan for Bond Issue Won't Oppose Fields

Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Jan. 21.—The State Efficiency Commission met today. It is understood it will recommend to the legislature the "pay as you go" plan in relation to the $75,000,000 proposed state bond issue. It is stated the commission does not aim to oppose Governor Fields' plan.

REJECT SELLERS FOR POSITION POLICE CHIEF

Commissioners Postpone Action On Police Force for Present—Vote Down Foot Bridge Across Canal

GRANT TAX EXEMPTION TO TWO NEW INDUSTRIES

Application of D. C. Sellers for city police chief was rejected at the commissioners' meeting this morning. Commissioner Charles E. Cooke nominated Mr. Sellers, after "due deliberation." Mayor J. H. Keeney and Commissioner J. E. Evans voted against the proposition.

Applications for places on the force were submitted by W. B. White, H. E. Hall, Frank Crabtree, Reese Watkins, C. M. Yeary, A. D. Delusk, Jess Davis, Doc Chadwell, J. C. Goodwin, and Jess Hatton. Those not now members of the force attached to their applications signatures of a number of citizens who favor their appointment.

The matter of selecting the chief and the force was also deferred. It was stated that the chief would be selected first and that he would be consulted in the matter of appointing patrolmen.

Under the statute that permits city tax exemption for manufactories for a period of five years, tax assessments against the Martin-Page company were cancelled. A request by J. L. Manring that the Butterrup Ice Cream company be exempted in the same manner was approved.

A request from the Parent-Teachers' Association that a foot bridge be constructed across the canal for the convenience of Central and high school pupils was referred to Mr. Evans, the commissioner of streets. Mayor Keeney stated a concrete bridge would cost at least $3,000, and that the city is not in a position now to finance the project. He contended that a permanent bridge should be erected and recommended that the matter be ignored for the present. Mr. Evans will get data on the cost for such a bridge of both wood and concrete construction. Application for the bridge stated that the streets are congested daily by the 1,5000 school children and that the bridge would relieve much of it.

Requests that the street be repaired where catch basins were constructed by the city near the Central school building, signed by O. B. Hollingsworth and J. T. Evans were also referred to the street commissioner.

Request for a permit for installation of a gasoline pump by Scales Bros. garage on Amesbury avenue was granted.

Mr. Cooke announced that Dahlberg & Co., Knoxville auditing firm, had promised to send a representative here within a few days.

Motion that local newspapers be asked for competitive bids for publishing monthly financial statements of the city and for other city business was approved.

Action was deferred on the application of H. H. Suit for the position of truck driver for the city.

URGE BUYING SAVINGS CERTIFICATES DURING THRIFT WEEK

Beginning January 17, and continuing up until the 23rd, National Thrift Week will be observed throughout the country, according to Postmaster Jno. M. Miller.

"Thrift may be considered one of the cardinal virtues and its importance cannot be over-emphasized. Thrift and saving practiced consistently will go far toward overcoming individual difficulties and many of our national problems," stated Postmaster Miller.

"Celebrate National Thrift Week by laying the foundation for realizing your most cherished ambitions, whether it be acquiring a home, a business of your own, the education of your children, or any other equally worthy object. Join the ranks of the successful and be independent. You can do this by purchasing as many Treasury Savings Certificates as you can afford to pay for now; then plan to buy more every month at the post office."

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD IS GIVEN LIBRARY BY BOSWORTH

The Congressional Record is a contribution of Representative Jos. P. Bosworth to the Carnegie library. The Journal has been coming to his address and he has instructed the postal clerks to send it to the library, giving in detail the news of congress day by day. It will be of great interest to a lot of library patrons.

A THOUGHT

Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is reproach to any people.—Prov. 14:34.

The Savior comes in the strength of righteousness. Righteousness is thorough; it is the very spirit of unsparing truth.—Phillips Brooks.

CITY REGULATION OF GARBAGE DISPOSAL

Any one who rides out into the country, any direction from Middlesboro, will agree that some thing must be done about the promiscuous dumping of garbage, tin cans and other refuse along the roadside or in vacant lots. But this same person, considering the matter of disposal of this refuse from the housewife's point of view, sees the justice of the fact that it must be dumped somewhere.

Every few weeks, or months, the matter of a city dump ground, or a furnace where all the garbage may be burned, or, at least city wagons to collect the garbage from the various backdoors of the town, is advocated. To date, advocating is all that has been done about it.

There is scarcely a city anywhere in Middlesboro's class that does not provide for this matter and make it compulsory for the residents to comply with the rules laid down, emptying the garbage every day and keeping their premises according to regulation. Yet here, there are quite a number of public eating places that use their back yards as dump grounds and keep things in a condition that one must wonder if the county health officer is really on the job.

Some thing must be done about this matter if we expect to have a healthful town or one that makes any pretense to war against the unclean and unsightly. Whether this is the province of the commissioners, the Kiwanis Club or the Woman's Club is a problem, but one of them should surely take the matter up.

GROW, DON'T SWELL

In a recent address, Dr. Murray Bartlett, president of Hobart College at the Lake Placid Club, Lake Placid, New York, emphasized eight points as important qualifications for a successful executive.

Four of his points had to do with intellectual qualifications and are:

1.—Observation: the ability to take notice of passing events.

2.—Concentration: to focus one's mind on the point at issue and eliminate nonessentials.

3.—Independent thinking: the ability to arrive at conclusion as result of your own observation of conditions.

4.—The expression of thought in clear and logical language.

His other four points which relate to moral qualifications of an executive are:

1.—Self control, or the ability to prevent one's personal prejudices from warping his judgment in making decisions on important matters.

2.—Honesty, which means truthfulness in business affairs and fair dealing with those with whom we come in contact.

3.—Sympathy, the ability to understand the feelings, expressions or proposals of those with whom one comes in contact.

4.—Service, doing something for the community or humanity that makes the world a better place in which to live.

A man who can live up to Dr. Bartlett's qualifications for leadership would be a fine teacher for young people, a minister of great influence in a church or an executive who would guide safely the affairs of a great corporation.

The remark has been made that the cloak of authority causes some people to grow, others merely to swell. Dr. Bartlett's eight points, if followed, should eliminate the swelling process.

LEXINGTON'S APPEAL

One of the strongest and most brilliant addresses made before the joint session of the Kentucky Legislature Monday was by Desha Breckenridge, editor of the Lexington Herald. Mr. Breckenridge pointed out that the best way for Kentucky to go forward was to improve the roads and schools and that we could not do this important work without money.

In addition to this splendid address, neatly printed folders giving the views of the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Lions Club, the Optimist Club and the Pyramid Club of Lexington were placed on each lawmaker's desk. Here is what it said:

Lawmakers, Kentucky Appeals to You.

We of the Bluegrass have good roads. We want all Kentucky to have such roads. We are willing to help pay the bill. Give us a chance. Good roads are as essential to the farmers as good streets to the city. If you are a friend to the farmer, give us a chance to help him.

Kentucky's richest and most precious asset is her children. They are entitled to the best training, the best facilities money can buy. We want them to have it and we are willing to pay the bill. Aren't you?

We favor giving Kentucky the best University, the best Normal Training Schools, the best and most competent Public School Teachers that money will secure. We favor restoring Kentucky to the leadership in the Nation through righteously educating our children. Don't you?

We want to give that care and training to our blind, deaf, dumb and feeble-minded as their capacity and condition warrant; to our demented such merciful care and treatment as becomes a Christian people. We want to protect society against the criminal. Don't you?

We believe the user of the roads should pay the freight as he steps on the gas. We, therefore, favor the automobile tax and the gas tax. We want to lift Kentucky out of the mud and banish the "Detour State." Don't you?

You are not asked to saddle a debt upon Kentucky. You are asked to pass a law and secure a commission that will insure this 75,000,000 Development Fund against waste and graft. That is what we hope you do. The people will do the rest. Won't you do it?

The voice of the people is pleading with you. The crying need of our children is calling to you; every interest of the state is appealing to you.

The spirit of Kentucky is praying to you—give us a chance to pull ourselves out of the mud! Let us educate our children!

Will you do it?

THE OPEN FORUM

Parking on Edgewood

Editor Daily News:

You carried an article last week explaining the divided duties of the two city commissioners, one having care of streets and another public safety. I want to know under whose jurisdiction the matter of parking cars on the wrong side of the road comes.

At least two persons with cars, residing on Edgewood Road, have a habit of driving up from town and parking their cars on the wrong side of the street, leaving them there all night most of the time. I have narrowly escaped running into each of them several times. Edgewood Road is such a narrow street, any way, that there is not room for two cars to pass when another is parked in the way. And when you are coming up the Road you aren't very keen about killing your engine trying to stop to let the other car by the parked car. I want some thing done about this.

If you want to know whose cars they are, drive up Edgewood Road tonight and find out.

MOTORIST.

THIS LITTLE WORLD

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21.—Some weeks ago, when New Orleans found itself without a ghost, due to a gambler's confession that the Haunted House was only a gambling resort and that the sporting gentry had even hired spirits to groan and clank their chains, the young bloods of the city found a new hangout for ethical citizens.

It was located in Gallatin street, a deserted little river-front throughfare once in the good old steamboat days. Now this little street, dark, narrow, lined with rickety, ancient overhanging and sagging houses, is used by ragpickers and their ilk. For weeks society gallants had been taking their partners at the Vieux Carré balls to hear the ghost of Gallatin street. This particular ghost made a roaring, hissing sound.

Finally some brave beau, who was not in on the secret, ventured to hear the ghost in his den. It turned out to be the pet alligator of Judge Jules Brunot, who had parked his pet there for the winter.

American history records that General Andrew Jackson won the battle of New Orleans. Nearly all historians admit his victory was largely due to reinforcements rushed him by the pirate, Jean Lafitte.

Now New Orleans is considering erecting a monument, near that of General Jackson, to Pirate Lafitte.

For the first time since 1776 the dripping fountain at the Old Absinthe House has stopped. The marble slab under the faucet, worn almost through by the constant drip from the siphon, is dry.

No gentleman ever drank his absinthe mixed with a spoon. The absinthe had to be placed in a glass and then slowly dissolved by the drip from the fountain.

Recently New Orleans experienced its coldest weather in years. The bartenders at the Old Absinthe House now politely called a soft drink emporium, forgot to protect the fountain. So it froze up and burst.

The price of turnip greens in New Orleans has soared to unheard of heights. Negro mammies who once sold them in the old French Market for almost a song, have become the aristocrats of vegetable vendors. It's due to Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy.

When he was in Louisiana recently he remarked that Tom Marshall, former vice president of the United States, had said that what the nation needed was a good five-cent cigar.

"Mr. Marshall is wrong," said Mr. Daniels, "what America needs is more corn pone, hog jowl and turnip greens."

Immediately New Orleans commenced the rush on turnip greens.

Girl Scouts of Country Hold Record Meetings by Radio

TWO GIRL SCOUTS "ATTENDING" A RADIO MEETING, HEARING A LECTURE ON MERIT BADGES.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 21.—Honors for the greatest regular attendance at weekly club meetings, of all organizations in the world, may safely be awarded to the new group of Girl Scouts.

They meet—500 of them—by radio. It is a new idea, originated by Laura P. Holland, scout director here, who began giving out her instructions for such a "troop" through broadcasting station KDKA at East Pittsburg, near here.

Today the largest single troop of Girl Scouts is to be found, not in the largest city, but scattered throughout the country, wherever the ethetal waves KDKA strike. It consists especially of girls tucked away in the isolated regions of the country, where there are never enough within hiking distance to form a troop.

Now these girls assemble every Monday evening at their radio sets and begin their meetings by listening in on the customary signals, the allegiance to the flag and the other routine of troop meetings. Instead of personal instructions from a local scout leader, these girls listen in on the instructions broadcast from KDKA.

Jailing of Wealthy Jap May End Huge Dope Ring

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Yasukichi Miyagawa—"poison king" who doped the world—has toppled from his throne.

Instead of converting heroism and cocaine into British golden guineas and Japanese yen, he will for the next three years do hard labor in a cold English prison. By the time he comes out, police officers of half a dozen nations hope they'll have totally destroyed and swept away his amazing organization for illegal traffic.

Like a huge yellow spider, this crafty Jap sat in a luxurious suite of offices in the heart of London and watched the threads he had spun to Hamburg, Switzerland, Marseilles, Japan, China, India and even the western ports of the United States.

For months, even years, Miyagawa enjoyed immunity. Nobody suspected him of wrongdoing. He was just a jolly, prosperous Jap, interested in exporting German goods to the orient. He was well known in London's little Tokyo and many white men enjoyed his gracious hospitality.

Betrayed

Last March, however, a fatal thing happened unknown to him. A poor wretch was arrested charged with peddling "snow." A Scotland Yard man found the dope in a hollow heel of his right shoe. The arrested man went to jail, but not before he had given the detective some important documents. These pointed to the Jap.

From the time of Miyagawa was a watched man. Every letter sent to him was examined by the authorities. The documents were photographed and then sent on to "The Master," as he was known to his agents.

From these letters the police learned he got his illegal drug supplies in Germany and Switzerland. They also learned how the drugs were able to pass, despite the vigilance of French, German, British and Japanese police and customs authorities. Miyagawa sent boat loads of pianos, furniture and toys to the orient. Part of this stock was genuine. In others there were hollow receptacles where the drugs were concealed.

Big Business

As a result of the tip thus obtained, one load of furniture was examined on a boat in the British harbor of Hongkong, China. Big quantities of morphine and cocaine were found.

Acting on tips from Scotland Yard, a bunch of his German agents were arrested. Then before he could take alarm, Miyagawa was nabbed.

When Miyagawa comes out of prison, he will be deported to Japan, where it is likely he will face further prosecutions.

Berton Braley's Poem

HOMEOPATHIC DOSES

"I put an Ad in the paper once.
But that was one of my foolest stunts,"
Said Hiram Gubbins. "I wanta say
That advertising don't nohow pay.
A two-inch ad was what I run
In just one issue and only one,
For that was enough to show me plain
That advertising don't bring no gain."

Said the Ad Man then, "If you used that dope
In estimating the worth of soap,
You'd wash one finger—and then assert
That soap had little effect on dirt.
You'd dip one foot in the bath some night
And claim that bathing was useless quite;
That soap and water were more or less
Completely futile for cleanliness.

"If you'd be clean you must get the habit
Instilled by Ivory, Pears or Baldbitt,
You must wash a lot in a thorough way
And bathe—well, anyhow Saturday!
And advertising is much the same.
It's keeping at it that wins the game:
And he—you'll pardon me—is a dunce
Who puts an ad in the paper—once!

MOTHER GOOSE RETURNS

"Hello, daddy! There you are!" she cried heartily.

The Market Town Fair was a great success.

The Piceman sold out over and over again, and even Greedy Nan said that for once in her life she had had enough to eat. The Popcorn Man said he had sold enough popcorn to trim a thousand Christmas trees, and as for lemonade! Well, it's a lying wonder that the Daddy Gander Land people didn't float away altogether and never come back.

Nancy and Nick had ten rides on the roller-coaster, straight running—no, I don't mean to say that the roller coaster was straight running. Roller coasters never are! But they had ten rides in a row. And then they decided that they would try the Ferris Wheel.

Daddy Gander bought a whole strip of tickets.

It was great fun to get into one of the little seats in the great wheel and then begin to mount slowly toward the sky. When you were up there it was like being on top of a mountain. You could look down at the earth spreading out like a map under your feet, and it made you feel over and over so important.

Well, by and by, lunch time came, and then such a hurrying for baskets and boxes and a scurrying to find shady places to spread table cloths on the grass.

All at once there was a rustling among the tree-tops and who should come gliding down to earth but Mother Goose, smiling her jolliest smile.

"Oh, goodness!" whispered Missez Sprat to Jack. "I left my front porch and walk in a dreadful way. I do hope I can get back home and clean it up before Mother Goose sees it!"

And Missez Dumpling and Missez Blue said about the same thing. Everybody in Daddy Gander Land, or I must say Mother Goose Land, now that she was back, was thinking of how he or she had hurried away and left the morning's work half finished.

But poor Daddy Gander! He was the most worried person of all. And he whispered to the Twins that he and Tom Tinker would have to manage to turn the gate sign around before Mother Goose would see it. And he was just about to step on his magic dustpan and wish himself out of that, when Mother Goose spied him.

"Hello, daddy! There you are!" she cried heartily. "I'm glad to know you've taken affairs into your own hands at last and that you call this place after yourself. I'm getting too old to go gallivating through the sky, any more and you can take my place. Hereafter I stay at home and take it easy and you can run things to suit yourself."

"You don't mean it, mother!" he exclaimed.

"Indeed I do! And I wish to say you were all very sensible to not waste any of this nice weather. Steps and door-mats and walks can wait. Fairs don't come every day, and one can sweep any time."

"Hurrah for Mother Goose!" cried everybody.

"Hurrah for Daddy Gander!" cried the Twins.

And everybody was happy.

TODAY'S BIG NEWS

Now 12¢

That favorite pocket tin of fresh Tuxedo tobacco which has cost you fifteen cents or more for the last five years, is yours for just twelve (12) cents from now on!

Just two things have made it possible for us to give you this 20% reduction on Tuxedo:

1. A reduction in the cost of Kentucky Burley tobacco and in package materials, as well.
2. The consolidation of three of our big plants into one. (Mr. Ford may not be in the tobacco business but he is right about consolidation.)

This gives us a chance to pass an advantage along to all our friends; to share a good thing.

We haven't lost any time in taking advantage of this opportunity.

You know that it is the desire and policy of The American Tobacco Co. to extend to its customers the maximum of service.

Reducing the price of a great favorite like Tuxedo—the moment it's possible—is our idea of delivering this service.

So now you're getting the familiar tin of Tuxedo tobacco at 12 cents instead of 15 cents.

Tuxedo is always FRESH. Every package is—

Detachment

If some perfect planet we could stand
And with disinterest view the lives we lead
See through our clearer eyes the life indeed,
Stripped of its daily note—the small demand—
A clear cut, naked fact could we command
The strength that we—mine, the pride—our creed—
Whereby in confidence we live exceed,
Or say we do all else that may be planned
Could we in this brief interval we have
With true, with reason, that we
With human feelings
We could not

PLAN TO IMPROVE LOCAL GOLF COURSE

Preparing for Large Patronage Next Year by Tourists Over Route A

Plans for improving the golf course of the Middlesboro Country Club are being considered by members, in anticipation of an unusually large patronage next season when the Route A Play Golf All the Way slogan becomes effective

The grounds are cared for during the winter months in the way of fertilization and rolling in order that they might present a more attractive appearance when the golf season properly opens There has not been a meeting of the directors for some time At the next meeting it is not unlikely that plans for improvement will be discussed

Efforts will also be made to bring the Southeastern Kentucky Golf tournament here again next year, according to officers of the club, and it is thought that chances for securing it are good

On all fair days, playing continues on the links throughout the winter months many members finding relaxation from business fatigue in the sport

fortunate that the full measure of this improvement has been denied the state by the reason of an amendment which causes the members of the county board to be elected from districts rather than from the county at large

Considers Local Interest

This action suggests a fundamental difficulty in Kentucky as in other states namely, the tendency of the part of the people themselves to look at educational problems too much from the standpoint of local interest The school system will never be economically or efficiently managed until the people of the state are willing to take a standpoint of view on matters of general educational policy, and a county point of view in the local application of these policies The unfortunate effects of allowing local interest to overshadow the state educational requirements are strikingly illustrated in the unseemly contest to secure the location of the two new state normal schools during the past year The result of this local sentiment and ambition was to place these two schools in localities that are inaccessible, and they do not fit into any really statewide problem of distribution of normal school facilities

Of paramount importance but unfortunately impossible under the present constitution, according to the report is a complete revision of the system of alloting the state common school fund The effect of the present laws is to create a deplorable degree of discrimination between the opportunities afforded to the pupils of the different districts What is needed is to treat the educational interests of the state as one great whole The common school fund should be so administered as to carry out this object Those districts which are poorer in local income need, from the standpoint of the state as a whole, a stimulus in the direction of better educational effort greater than is required where the local income is larger The state school fund should be distributed in direct proportion to the needs and to the efforts which the local districts are making to improve their situation

Regarding Functions

With reference to the functions of the state board of education and superintendent of public instruction the report says

The framers of the constitution in providing for a state school fund, to be divided according to what perhaps seemed to them an equitable arrangement, evidently tried to express the idea of equal educational opportunity The present ex officio state board of education should be abolished and its powers and duties vested in a body of continuous life Ultimately the superintendent should be appointed by the state board solely upon professional qualifications Until however, this can be accomplished by constitutional amendment, the desirable course would be to make him ex officio member and present of the reconstituted State Board of Education

Statutory changes should be adopted as will bring matters under a single governing body, all of the essential agencies of a complete educational system, the report concludes, involving the abolition of the state text book commission, the state board of examiners, and the vocational education board.

NOTICE

To My Friends

I wish to thank my friends for their support they gave me in my effort to secure for me the position of chief of police of Middlesboro

I think you have done all you could reasonably have done to the face of the well oiled machinery that appeared on the surface this morning.

As it could be readily seen there could be no chance for a change at present The present force appeared very confident as always on the eve of a crisis but the people of Middlesboro are persevering, and believe that right will prevail in the end and but we are unable to say how far off the end is but we do not believe that Kaiserism will always prevail here as at present at least we hope not

Beginning January 22 letters of recommendation and personal endorsements will appear one each day in the Middlesboro Daily News just as received from parties writing them

SPEED HOUNDS ON BARBOURVILLE ROAD PREY OF LAW

BARBOURVILLE, Jan 21 — Joy riders and speed hounds had a not gentle surprise last week end and the first part of this week Two traffic officers were placed on the new pike to get persons driving more than thirty miles an hour

Steve Stamper and Clark Smith, the speed cops, spent most of Saturday and Sunday escorting in culprits According to Mr Smith the persons he arrested took it good humoredly, with the exception of one person, who, if warrants are to be enforced, will have to pay another fine for peace disturbance

One motorist provoked the court to laughter Judge Stamper had him relate why he was speeding The motorist said he was going at the lively clip of forty five when he noticed someone behind him He thought the persons wanted by but decided to race the car a bit

After hitting forty five a while the motorist decided that the person in back of him could get by if he wanted to risk his neck

Of course, when the car came abreast of him the motorist was informed that he had been racing with the law and would have to go back to Barbourville The motorist said he couldn't help speeding when he hit our good road
